BODY

Remember, with true body butter a very little goes an extremely long way! Depending on how dry your skin is, a pea sized amount should cover not only your hands but your forearms. To deliver relief to seriously dehydrated skin, coat yourself in this rich, therapeutic body balm from head to toe, concentrating on particularly parched, flaky and irritated parts. You will notice that as this begins to nourish, calm, and start the healing process for your dry, irritated, and rash prone skin. As you treat your skin, you will begin to need less and less. With natural soothing, protective ingredients, the super-saturating formula moisturizes for 24 hours to break the cycle of dry skin, leaving it smooth, healthy and soft.

FACE

Depending on how dry the skin on your hands and face is, take the size of a pea or two and let it melt completely then dab and smooth over your face and décolleté.

The body butter was originally created for the face. It helps prevent the formation of fine lines and wrinkles and naturally nourishes aged and tired skin. This body butter, infused with Certified Organic butters and oils, was designed to heal and soften rough skin, provide a deep hydration and plumping to those problem areas.

BODY BUTTER

This brochure covers information and instructions on our skin nurturing Original Body Butter and our Healing Balm. If you purchased a scented body butter you have our original formula. The only difference is the original goes on a bit smoother and our Healing Balm is for dry, problem skin, such as eczema, psoriasis, rosacea, scarring and other skin related problems.

WITH LOVE & CO STORY

On August 4, 2016 the truly unimaginable happened in our lives. It had been a long, wet day in the mountains and my husband was attempting to light a campfire. After many failed attempts he resorted to throwing some gasoline on the wood to see if that would help. What he didn't expect was that somewhere there was a tiny spark. Upon ignition, the Solo cup that he had FILLED with gasoline hit a log and bounced back at his face. It is still hard to believe... and I had a front row seat! I still cannot believe what I saw!

We had weeks of bandage changes and burn unit visits ahead of us. From our first night in the burn unit, the doctors were saying how important it was to put lotion on all the wounds that were not weeping or were closed. They were concerned that he would end up losing parts of his face because the new skin doesn't have collagen or elastin so it cuts circulation. Once he got his first layer of new skin, they told us to keep it hydrated, any lotion would do and suggested to us a $2.99 brand... are you kidding me?! "Any lotion," was supposedly going to carry my husband and best friend over the finish line?! Give me a break!

Finally on the fifth day and the shock of seeing 10 foot flames on top off my husband wore off, I became overwhelming inquisitive of how the lotion would help him heal. I did my research, turned my kitchen into a lab and created a body butter that would heal my husband to the amazement of his doctors! He did not lose any part of his face as they had predicted and only has a few scars left on his right arm. Since, we have had many purchase requests from doctors, friends, family and those who have heard our story, and now we have happily made it available to the public!

Many people have asked about our company name, With Love. From that night we had to change his bandages twice a day, for over a month. Those bandage changing sessions would last anywhere from 4-6 hours. He would lay there patiently as I cared for him. I could only imagine how much pain he was in, every time I would remove his bandage and debride his wounds and my heart would just break. I would do all I could to make it as painless as possible and in turn he would tell me the whole time, "it's ok honey, really, it doesn't hurt." At the time, we were in our own world. Day in and day out this continued. What was lost on us (at the time) but was not lost on anyone else, was that we where both healing each other with love. Now we hope to share some of that with you!
